Health Of Local Residents Compared

IMPROVEMENT NOTED IN COUNTY

New York - Are residents of Appomattox County getting healthier, year by year? Judging by the amount of time taken out by them for illness, are they in better shape now than they were a few years ago?

Just how healthy the people in one section of the country are, as compared with those in other sections, is determined by the government through a continuing survey, based upon weekly samplings.

It is conducted by the National Center for Health Statistics, which is a division of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

A "disability days index" is used to estimate the general health in each area. This takes into account the number of days that people are forced by illness or injury to stay home from work or school, to stay in bed or otherwise to cut down on their normal activities.

According to the latest figures, in Appomattox County's regional area there has been noticeable improvement in the health of the local population since 1965.

Their restricted activity time averaged 15.9 days per person in 1970, including 7.2 days in bed, the report shows. This compares with 16.9 restricted days, 6.7 of them in bed, in 1965.

Elsewhere throughout the country, people were on the disability list for an average of 14.6 days, of which 6.1 were bed days.

In Appomattox County, applying the regional average locally, the current rate of disability is causing an overall loss of 156,000 activity days per year.

Nation's Number One Killer

Heart Disease Takes 64.0 Percent Toll Locally

Heart Sunday - Feb. 25th

County Goal Set At $2,250

Approximately 75 volunteers will be out Sunday, February 25th, seeking funds for the annual Heart Fund Drive, according to Tom Matthews, Chairman for Appomattox County.

The Heart Fund Goal for Appomattox County this year is set at $2,250, an increase of $250 over that of last year.

It takes at least 75 volunteers working in one capacity or another to cover the county. Businesses are being contacted by letter but a door-to-door canvass of the county will be made.

Contributions may be made through some of the area churches.

February is Heart Fund Month! Heart and blood vessel diseases kill more Americans than all other causes of death combined. Thousands of lives could be saved just by knowing a few simple facts. The average victim waits three hours before he decides to get help. More than half the victims die before they reach the hospital. Warning signs usually precede a heart attack and one of the purposes of the Piedmont Heart Association, of which we are a part, is to educate the public to these signs.

When a volunteer calls on you, please give generously. Your contributions can be used in research and in education for the public and can possibly help cut down on the number of deaths due directly to heart and blood vessel diseases.

New York - What is the magnitude of the heart disease problem in Appomattox County? How does it compare with the situation in other areas? What progress is being made in coping with it?

The questions come to the fore at this time because of the recent death of President Johnson and because this is National Heart Month.

According to the latest figures released by the U. S. Public Health Service, based upon data gathered from all parts of the country, heart disease continues to hold its position as the nation's number 1 killer.

The toll it takes is greater than that due to cancer, accidents, pneumonia and most other causes of death combined.

In Appomattox County, according to the last three annual reports issued by the government, approximately 64.0 percent of all deaths of local residents are due to diseases of the cardiovascular system, commonly lumped together under the name heart disease.

The proportion is somewhat larger than that reported for the United States as a whole, 53.5 percent. It is also above the ratio in the South Atlantic States, 52.6 percent.

The mortality rate varies considerably from one section of the country to another. Among the reasons given for the difference are local eating habits, hereditary background, type of occupation and physical characteristics.

Studies undertaken by the American Heart Association and others indicate that "the good life" in the United States and in other advanced nations invites heart trouble for many people.

"Living it up" through too much indulgence in the wrong kinds of food causes fatty materials, called lipids, to build up in the blood and circulatory system, putting a strain on the heart as it tries to pump blood through the arteries.

Schedule Set For Meetings

Estate planning meetings are scheduled for March 12 and 19, J. A. Smith, Extension Agent, announced today.

There will be two 2-hour meetings held at the District Extension Office beginning at 7:30 p.m. The first meeting will deal with wills and deeds and the second session with gifts, insurance, sales and trusts.

Smith pointed out that it's unfortunate that a great many people prefer waiting until retirement before planning for their estate, when actually it may be of greater importance to young families.

Estate planning is providing for the future -- your spouse and family -- education of children -- providing a guardian for minor children -- estate and inheritance tax management -- providing for the orderly succession to management of your business -- wills and deeds.

Twenty - seven people have already registered for this meeting; it's open to all citizens. Smith urged that both wives and husbands attend because this should be a joint decision.
